FOREWORD

The theme of our book this year is one we all know well - National College itself. In the pages ahead you will see the many facets of college life - academic, social, religious - as seen through our bulletin boards. Here is the school that we have lived and learned in today, the one that we shall remember with love and gratitude tomorrow.

To Mr. Linford Marquart

His grey hair with its streak of black, his thoughtful, penetrating eyes, and his cynical, yet humble smile introduce our history professor.

With subtle sarcasm and profound personal anecdotes, he takes history from the realm of events and dates and reveals it as an exciting tale of human personalities. With the skill of the philosopher, he translates the complex chapters of yesterday into single sentence forecasts of tomorrow.

As he treats each person as an individual from whom he can learn, he teaches human understanding by example.

Is Education today preparing young people to live in the highly scientific and technological world that lies ahead? This is the question that is constantly being asked of educators. It is a matter that should be of great concern to each one of us. We agree that we have moved far ahead in our understanding of things scientific and technological. Man's desire to move into space is an example of the ever present "thirst for adventure and knowledge."

Need for more understanding of science also brings to us the need for more understanding in the human relations-social science areas. The tragic explosions of Little Rock prove that with all of man's knowledge there has been failure in the most important area facing our civilization--that of getting along with people. We need to build for ourselves the security needed for fullest development, physical, intellectual, social, moral and spiritual.

Unless man can control what has been made available to him through his research, and unless it can be directed toward the advancement of ALL men, his findings will have little significance and will lead toward destructive ends. We are living in a thrilling time when great advance is taking place in many areas of endeavor. It is my hope that we who have the privilege of planning a part of the "destiny of youth" may not fail in building a solid foundation today that can give the strength to meet tomorrow's challenges regardless of what they may be. The opportunity for education and for teachers has never been greater.

K. Richard Johnson, President

Avery Coonley School in Downers Grove, Illinois.

--- IN MEMORIAM ---

Mrs. Avery Coonley, after whom the Avery Coonley School in Downers Grove is named, died early in the summer of 1958. She established the school in 1912 as a private kindergarten and it was expanded in 1927 to include eight grades and moved to its present location. In 1949 Mrs. Coonley gave the school and its property to National College with the understanding that its high educational standards would be maintained. Since then a warm relationship has developed between National and the Avery Coonley School.

National College has recently lost two good and great friends. Dr. N. Dwight Harris, who died on September 4, 1958, and Henry J. Brandt, who died on July 29, 1958, were known and loved by all for their deep belief and faith in this College.

- o Dr. Harris, a noted author, poet, educator, and philanthropist, was a member of the Board of Trustees for many years. During this time his munificent gifts to the College included the President's home, the Graduate House, and timely contributions to the scholarship, building, and current operations funds of the College.

Mr. Brandt, a leading attorney, had been President of the Board of Trustees since 1949. He stimulated a vigorous spirit of enthusiasm and cooperation among his associates, and by his leadership, counsel, and example made many significant and lasting contributions to the College.

Kenneth Holmes is known to National students and faculty members as a cheerful, earnest, and conscientious worker and friend. He has served the College since December, 1920, when the school was located in the 2900 block on Michigan Avenue in Chicago. He had come to this country from Sweden only a year before.

Today Kenneth has three grown children of whom he is very proud. His oldest daughter, Margaret, graduated from Northwestern University in 1952, and is now employed as a laboratory technician. She is married and has a little boy  $2\frac{1}{2}$  years old. Dorothy, his other daughter, graduated from National in 1956, and was our May Queen for that year. She is married also, has a baby boy, and is teaching sixth grade in Ames, Iowa. Kenneth's son, Stephen, is a student in Business Administration at Western Michigan University and plays on the basketball team there. Kenneth says that he and his wife have always felt that "Whatever we could do for our children, we were really doing for ourselves."

Thank you, Kenneth, for the wonderful job you have done at National--we are proud of you and hope that you will always be our helper and friend.

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL

Like the undergraduate curriculum, the Master's Degree program at National College is meant to benefit the classroom teacher. We think of it as graduate study for the development of "Master Teachers." At Commencement, in January and June, between thirty and fifty Master's Degree candidates are hooded each year. Only this year, the Teachers College of Columbia University has granted us special recognition in a cooperative doctoral program in which our Master's Degree graduates will be permitted to take additional courses at National College while working toward the Doctor's Degree at Columbia.

For the Graduate Council,

Lewis Troyer,
Director of Graduate Studies

FRESHMAN YEAR

Opportunity to study teaching in the freshman year is greatly enhanced at National by the presence of the Children's School on campus. First-hand acquaintance with children in the classroom through the observation and participation program accompanies study of child growth and current trends in teaching.

SOPHOMORE YEAR

Method courses covering language arts, social studies, and children's literature provide concentrated experiences which come to life the second semester of the sophomore year in the first student teaching experience at the Children's School, Mary Crane Nursery, or one of the many fine public schools in the area.

JUNIOR YEAR

A September student teaching experience usually falls in the junior year. This provides the student with an opportunity to participate in orientation programs and gain a better understanding of the school's policies. Special emphasis on music, speech, and arithmetic methods prepare the student to effectively carry out his objectives in the classroom.

SENIOR YEAR

In the senior year a student may elect the full-time student teaching program and reside off campus for a nine-week period. Professional courses taken during the remainder of the semester supplement practical experience, making possible real insight into the life of a teacher. Senior students may also elect a student-teaching experience in the Guidance Center and thus gain a better understanding of how to deal with special problems.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Several scholarships donated by friends of the college and alumnae are available to senior students enrolled at National. In order to obtain one of these scholarships, students must have achieved excellence in scholarship, character, and teaching ability. Thus, it is a great honor to be presented with one of them.

The Senior Prom, held at the Sheraton Hotel, in Chicago on December 5, is one of the favorite 1958-1959 memories of all who attended. The music of Roger Wolff and his orchestra added much to this special evening.

MAY FESTIVAL

"What is life?" It's made up "Of Spice and Women"--the theme of the all-college production presented on May 1, culminating the year's activities. Amid elaborate stage sets, lavishly costumed National students displayed a variety of dramatic, musical, and dancing talent, as directed by Mrs. Margaret Lindman, Mrs. Jean Duffy, Miss Marjorie Hunter, and Mr. Richard K. Gorski. Although Venus is thought to be made of stone, she came to life on this night and crowned the Woman of the Year, our own ay Queen.

Friday, May 8, was the date of the Junior Prom, which was held in the Sovereign Hotel ballroom in Chicago. The Music, proved by Ralph Berger and his orchestra, gave the dance a special quality that made it one of the most delightful activities of the year.

One of the great highlights of the sophomore year is the forming of the daisy chain at commencement. This tradition is symbolic of the love and good wishes extended to the members of the senior class.

Our sincere appreciation goes to the following people whose help and cooperation have made this yearbook possible:

Mrs. Pauline Galvarro, sponsor, who patiently helped and guided us when we needed assistance;

Mr. Joseph Vogel, representative of the Artmaster Yearbook Company, who taught and advised us in the making of our yearbook;

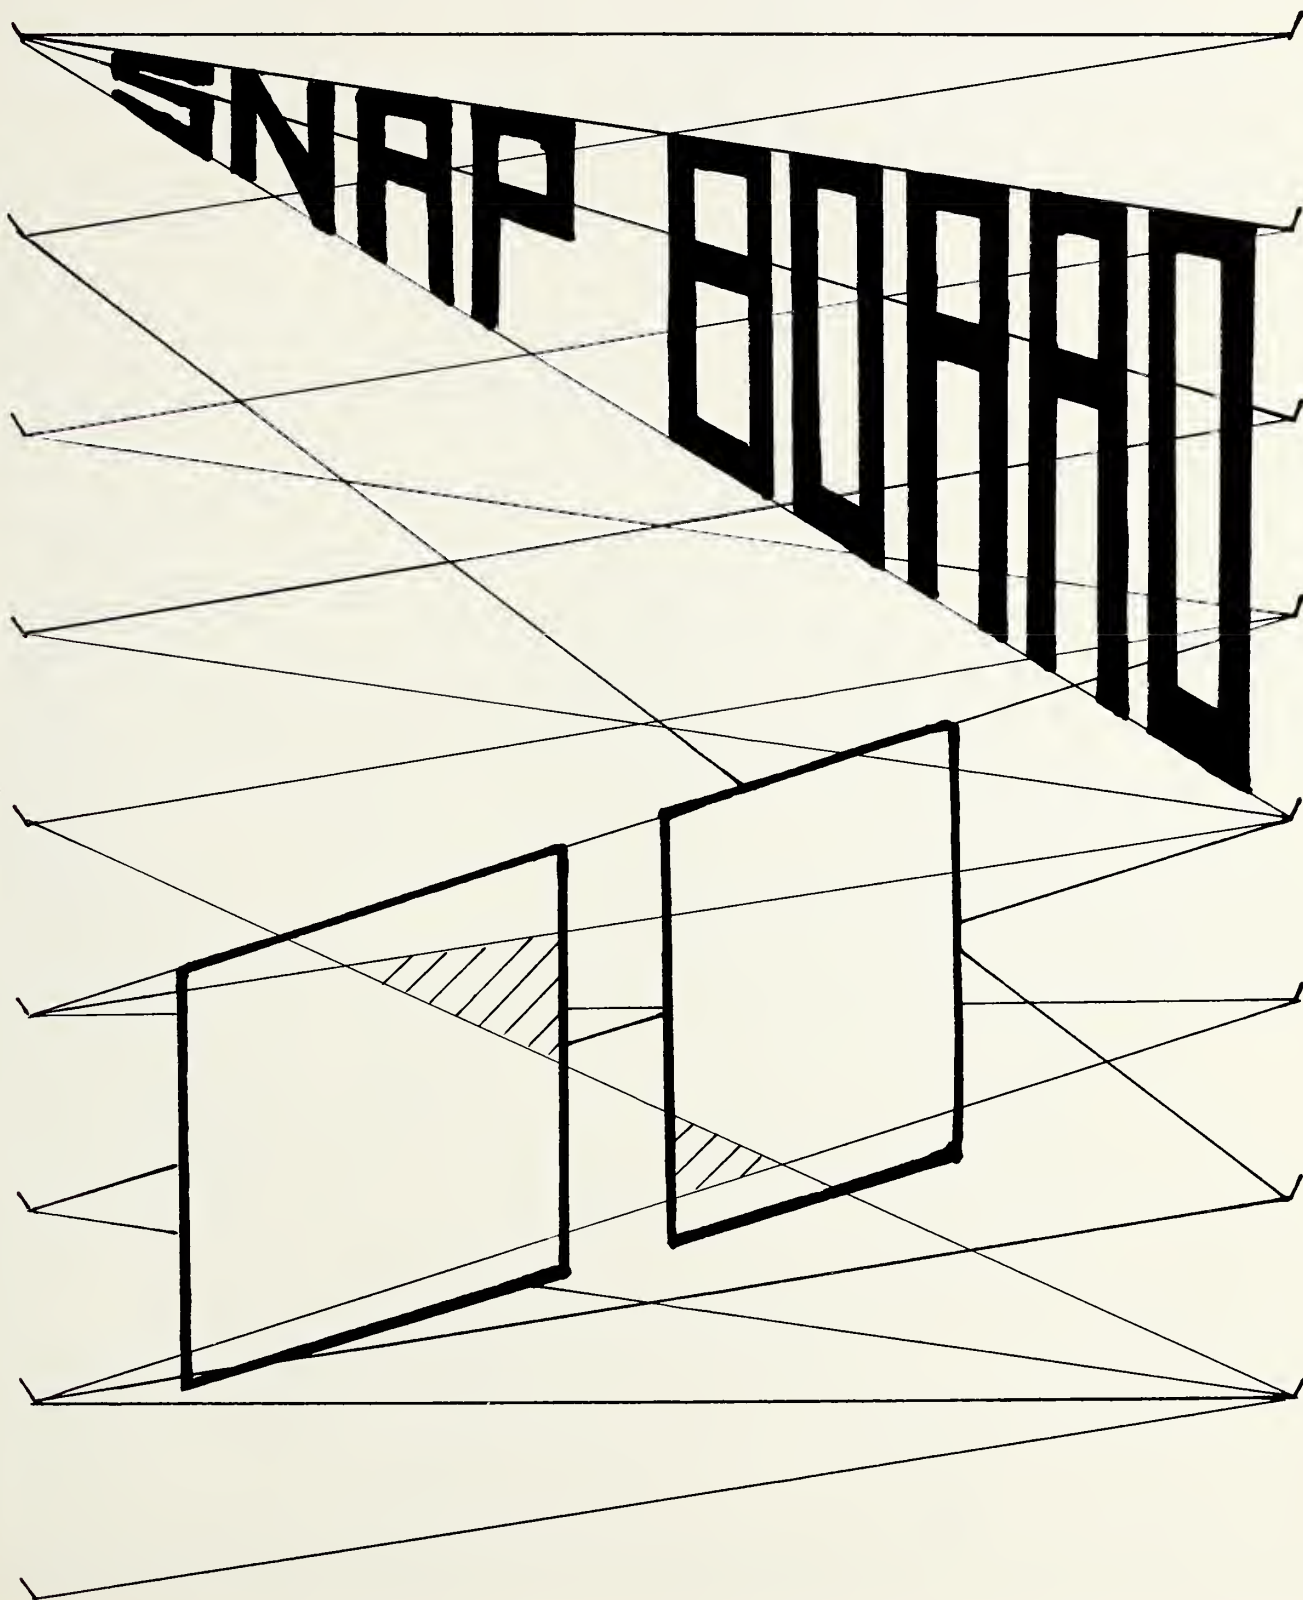

Mr. Robert McIntosh, photographer, who was very cooperative in taking and printing our photographs;

The college faculty, who have shown much interest and given valuable assistance to the yearbook staff;

Our fellow students, who have supported us by working with staff members on the various sections of the yearbook.
